Positive Connections teaches kids responsibility with rewards

Basking in the sun, hanging out at the mall and visiting with friends are just a few things teens say they like to do during the long summer break.

For some teens, though, summer means continuing their studies, attending school half a day and then going to a job site in the afternoon to earn a paycheck.

Students in Lake Shore Middle School's Positive Connection program have an added incentive to attend school each morning. In addition to assembling their own computers, they will get to take home the computers at the end of the course.

Funded through the Private Industry Council, Positive Connections is in its second successful year. Site Coordinator Michael Jackson says the program instills motivation and self-esteem.

"It's a very good program. It gives the kids a different approach than the school year and allows them to be more aggressive and creative," he said.

The program is operated at three sites in the Glades: Glades Central Community High School, West Technical Education Center and at Lake Shore. Over 80 students are participating this year.

"I couldn't wait to get in the program," said Latoya Daniels, 14. "Last year, I wasn't old enough."

Latoya and her 17 classmates are in the technology part of the program. Other students are in the instructional side, which teaches basic education, math and language arts.

The third phase of the program is a work experience class which teaches the students how to prepare for a job interview. The second year students who come back into the program after receiving their computers the first year, are given new programs to load into the system, a printer and a modem.

If they finish the second year, they get to keep the software, printer and modem, as well as the computer.

Teacher Bill Allen said it takes the students two to three weeks to assemble the computers.

"They are learning something that was very scary to them at first," said Mr. Allen. "After about two weeks they really got into it. Some of these students had problems in regular school. Not here. Absentism is very low. They can't wait to get here."

Mr. Jackson said the Private Industry Council spends about $1,000 per student on the computers and equipment, plus pays the student's salary for their afternoon jobs.

The program ends today with ceremonies in the gymnasium at Lake Shore.

"The knowledge they gain here will almost assure them a job later on," said Mr. Jackson.

The students were chosen for the classes after taking the TABE test (Testing Adult Basic Education). Mr. Jackson said the students had to score very high to be considered for the program. He also looked at other factors, including the student's attendance records.

"They can apply the knowledge they get in this program and it will have a spill over into their school work and in the work place," said Mr. Jackson.

Holy Way leader is sentenced an additional 10.5 years in prison

Tammy Jackson
Staff Reporter

Holy Way leader Clarence Williams, 71, was sentenced in Palm Beach County Court Thursday, July 21, to 10 1/2 years in prison after he pled guilty to having sex with a teenage church member between 1988 and 1990. Known as "Brother Bill" to many of his followers, Williams is still considered by the Pahokee cult organization to be a link to God.

Williams is presently serving a 12-year sentence for violating probation in an earlier lewd assault. The 10-year sentence was part of a plea deal.

Williams' victim, Andrea McCarthy, testified at a trial last year that he (Williams) used a bully-act to coerce her into having sex with him from October 1987 to October 1990. She alleged sexual intercourse with Williams began when she was 14 years old.

After Ms. McCarthy came forward with her allegations against Williams, other women said they had had sex with Williams while they were underage members of the church.

Williams began the Holy Way organization after he and other followers split from the First Baptist Church of Pahokee. Television and newspapers were banned among the members. They were also encouraged to avoid contact with the outside world.

The church got a reputation of a "sex-in-the-name-of-the-lord" cult with Williams delivering sermons peppered with profanity and verbal abuse.

South Bay Growers hoping to sell salad processing plant by Aug. 31

Tammy Jackson
Staff Reporter

According to Lisa Sanchez, South Bay Growers Marketing Specialist, South Bay Growers is still meeting with companies interested in operating the salad processing plant. She said the company will make a decision hopefully by the end of August, as to who will operate the plant.

"According to reports, there are numerous buyers interested in purchasing the plant. However, according to Mrs. Sanchez, South Bay Growers is looking to find someone who will operate the plant much in the same way as does South Bay Growers.

South Bay Growers announced three weeks ago it was shutting down the packing house and field operations effective Sept. 4, 1994. They did however state the salad processing plant would remain open until a buyer could be found. With the closing, approximately 1,300 people were laid off.

The salad plant employs 146 workers.

South Bay Growers' salad processing plant provides McDonalds and Burger King with processed salads, along with other food chains and supermarkets.

Advice on how to cope with the job loses at South Bay Growers

By Earlene Kuck

Hundreds of local residents will soon feel the full impact of the closure of South Bay Growers, Inc.

There were 418 full-time employees, about half of whom will be placed in positions by U.S. Sugar Corp., almost immediately. That leaves another 200 who will be job searching and some of those will be looking for housing also, if they lived in the company owned Villa Lago.

Then there are the 690 seasonal workers who live year-round in South Bay and nearby communities, such as Glendon and Belle Glade.

This means that approximately 900 people will be in pretty dire straits come Sept. 4 of this year. They will all be looking for work; they may be hungry; they may be homeless; they definitely will be in financial distress.

This is the first in a series of articles, which hopefully will help them to locate community, state and federal aid.

Learning to cope with the many stresses when money runs out - Where can you go? What can you do? Who will talk to you? Who can help you?

These are some of the questions to be discussed, and more importantly, answered.

You may feel distressed, sad, angry, confused, hostile and disoriented. There are people and agencies out there to help. Regardless of your situation there are options and there are always solutions.

The first thing you need to do is to make a very honest evaluation of your situation. List the things you need most, such as food, medical, housing, and then contact the proper agencies in order of priority.

If you are hungry, for instance, contact:

- Local churches
- The Welfare Department
- Counselors at the nearest school
- The Public Health Department
- The Salvation Army
- The Red Cross
- The Chamber of Commerce
- The Council on Aging
- Losing your job or having a family member lose their job can bring on a host of stressful situations, including violence.
- If you are being abused, contact:
- The Domestic Violence Hotline number at 1-800-333-Safe.
- A trusted family member
- School counselor

Do you know how hurricanes are rated?

By Mike Lyons

Mother Nature put on quite a show last week. She did it with a hurricane called Emilia. Emilia is the most powerful hurricane ever recorded in the central Pacific. At one point this monster produced sustained winds of 160 mph with wind gusts of 195 mph. That means Emilia was a category five hurricane.

Category five storms are, thankfully, very rare. One two have ever hit the United States. The Labor Day hurricane of 1935 struck the Florida Keys causing all sorts of damage and claiming over 400 lives.

In 1969, a hurricane called Camille came ashore near Gulfport, Miss. with winds of 200 mph and the lowest barometric reading ever recorded in the Gulf of Mexico - 26.73 inches. By the way, Hurricane Andrew was a category four storm.

So hurricanes not only have names they also have numbers. We rank these powerful storms on a scale of one to five. It's called the Saffir/Simpson scale, named for the two men who devised it.

Herbert Saffir, a consulting engineer in Coral Gables and Robert Simpson, the former director of the National Hurricane Center, came up with the scale in 1972. At the time, the folks at the hurricane center were having difficulty predicting how much damage to expect from different size hurricanes.

Simpson asked his friend Saffir for help. I looked at the problem from a meteorological point of view," Simpson said. "Herb looked at it from an engineering angle."

Saffir, an authority on designing buildings to withstand strong winds, figured out what kind of damage to expect from different wind speeds. Simpson focused on meteorological details such as the potential storm surge from various sized hurricanes.

Both men not only knew their subjects they both had first-hand experiences with hurricanes. Saffir had survived two storms. The first in his native Corpus Christi, Texas when he was a child, and the other was in 1947, shortly after he moved to Dade County.

Simpson probably knew more about hurricanes than anyone else in the world when he was appointed as the very first director of the National Hurricane Center in 1955. He got that knowledge by observing hurricanes up close as a veteran of scores of military flights into storms.

The two men put their heads and their experiences together to come up with a scale that we now take for granted. The scale classifies hurricane wind speeds and tries to determine what kind of damage a particular storm might produce.

For example, a category one hurricane has winds ranging from 74 to 95 mph. According to the Saffir/Simpson scale, the damage from those winds would be minimal. TV antennas, power lines and small trees could be knocked down.

A category three hurricane, however, would cause much more damage. Winds from a category three may reach 130 mph. Winds that high could cause structural damage to homes and buildings.

Since its inception over 20 years ago, the Saffir/Simpson scale has turned out to be an excellent predictor of hurricane damage. Safety officials have a pretty good idea of what to expect in their area before the storm hits thanks to the efforts of an engineer and a meteorologist.

Vanisha "Vanny" Brown, an upcoming senior at Glades Central Community High School was selected to participate in The National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) and the Quality Education for Minorities (QEM) 1994 SHARP PLUS Research Apprenticeship Program.

Vanisha will spend eight weeks (June 20-Aug. 12) in residence at San Francisco State University, California, working closely with industry/university based mentors, who are engaged in cutting edge science and engineering research.

As a Sharp Plus apprentice, Vanisha will carry out research assignments, prepare written reports, make oral presentations and prepare a written final report on her experience, which will be submitted to NASA.

She will also participate in a variety of enrichment activities, and will be provided with information and or guidance on mathematics, science and engineering (MSE) fields.

SHARP PLUS seeks to increase minority students' participation and success rates in challenging mathematics and science courses at the pre-college level, thereby increasing the pool of well-prepared minority students for professional careers in science - and engineering related fields.

Vanisha is the daughter of Vance and Tekteta Brown, and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melvon Lockett (Pauline), Rev. and Mrs. Clarence Brown (Cynthia), of Belle Glade, and Bettye McLean of New York. Protect Your Valuables With Security Devices (N.U.) - You've seen the commercials warning, "Don't leave home without it." But when Jack Taylor passes that message along, he's not thinking about a credit card.

Taylor is the founder of Austin House, a manufacturer and distributor of high-quality travel accessories, from mini blow-dryers to money belts.

Maybe leaving home without your blow-dryer is inconvenient, but if you're traveling abroad, it's the money belt and other security devices that are the real essentials.

Taylor calls money belts "the meat and potatoes of personal security. Women traveling overseas shouldn't carry purses or handbags," he says.

They can be cut off by thieves on motor bikes. If you insist on carrying a purse, don't keep any valuables in it. Carry your passport, travelers checks and credit cards in a money belt worn inside your clothing."

The same advice holds true for fancy packs — those convenient pouches you strap around your waist. If you wear one, make sure it contains only the essentials for the day, and keep your valuables in a money belt.

Taylor's company makes money belts to wear around the waist or neck, clipped to the waistband inside a skirt or trousers, around the calf or over the shoulder. Materials are lightweight and the devices are designed to be worn inside clothing.

But even with the security devices, Taylor says, "carry only what's necessary for a day." When it comes to something you don't really need, do leave home without it.

Austin House products are available at luggage shops and department stores.

Planning ahead is vital for a stress-free vacation.

Give us a place to hang out
I am writing while I am still good and mad. People of Belle Glade or visitors have nothing to fear of us teens. We are minding our own business.

If people are so ignorant to think all teens are out to mug them, tell them to walk around us. Granted, a few people have a point that there are drugs everywhere, not just of Fifth Street, and there are a few sour apples in the barrel, but should we all suffer? I think not.

If the people could give a designated area for us to hang out, I know for a fact 95 percent would stay in that area.

Belle Glade's response to survey was too low

Unfortunately, we have another good example of citizen's apathy.

The Public Service Commission and Southern Bell recently announced a rejection of a toll-free plan for the entire county. The plan called for a $2 fee for unlimited time for calls throughout the area.

Seven thousand, three hundred, thirty-five ballots were mailed to Belle Glade alone. Only 1,810 responded, with 68 percent of those in favor. While the measure was generally defeated by coastal retirees, where were Belle Glade's 5,525 who couldn't be bothered to respond in any fashion?

Leash law not being enforced
Why don't they enforce the leash law in Belle Glade?

Don't say call the Animal Control people, 'cause they won't do anything about it when you call them about dogs.

You can't ride a bicycle or walk in town without dogs chasing you. Why not just lay some of the people off who are suppose to be taking care of this because they're not doing their job. Just lay them off and save the taxpayers that much money.

Editor's note: I called Animal Control. Lt. Alice Geiger said due to cutbacks last October they only have one full-time road patrol officer to handle calls for Belle Glade, Pahokee, South Bay, and Canal Point. "We picked up 140 dogs and cats last month. I'm not surprised you've had complaints, but we're doing the best we can," she said.

"HARASSMENT...BAH! I'VE BEEN WORKING HERE TWENTY YEARS AND NOBODY'S EVER HARASSED ME."

Interdiction is essential in war on drugs

By Congressman E. Clay Shaw
22nd Congressional District,
U.S. House of Representatives

A recently released study by the Rand Corporation proposes to solve the nation's drug problem by spending more money on treatment and by spending next to nothing on drug interdiction and law enforcement. This will not work and here is why.

The Rand study assumes that drug interdiction does not work. The reality is that cutting interdiction will make drugs easier to obtain. Studies show that for every $1 invested in interdiction, $20 worth of drugs is kept off our streets.

Since first becoming involved in the drug war, military-assisted drug interdiction efforts have produced remarkable results. In 1990, only 10 kilos of drugs per day were disrupted; by 1993 the total was almost 500 kilos of drugs per day. For an expenditure of 0.5 percent of the total defense budget, military assistance in interdiction has helped double law enforcement agencies' successes every year.

The study also assumes that cuts in drug interdiction and law enforcement can be made painlessly by those looking for more money for treatment. Again, not true. These cuts increase the availability of drugs, reduce street prices, and create more first time users. Plus, they send the signal to drug traffickers that our borders are open again. We should never go back to the 1970s and 1980s, when border states such as Florida were practically a free-trade zone for the drug lords.

And finally, many believe that if offered treatment, drug addicts will accept and turn their lives around. Not true. Statistics show that only one in four hard-core users can be successfully treated, and there currently is no proven method for treating cocaine addicts. Unfortunately, getting addicts into treatment is not the same as getting addicts off of drugs.

Like it or not, in a time of tight budgets, many regard overall drug spending as a zero-sum game.

While more treatment is a good idea, it cannot be done at the expense of law enforcement and supply reduction resources. Slashing drug interdiction and crime fighting is a prescription for failure. The only way to truly treat drug addiction is to reduce the supply of drugs through drug interdiction.

Letter to the editor

To the citizens of the Glades area:

Please accept our belated thanks for your love and compassion shown to our family during the time of Steve's illness and death. We learned the true meaning of Christ's commandment "Love one another even as you love yourself."

Thank you for your letters, cards, visits, flowers, food, and most of all your prayers.

A special thank you to the Palm Beach County Sheriff's Office for your loyalty and the honor you bestowed upon Steve. To the nursing staff at Glades General Hospital, we wish you to know you are truly professional and caring people.

We appreciate your support of the Sgt. Steve Haller Benefit Fund, barbeque and raffle held July 9, 1994. Thank you for this honor. Steve loved the Glades, her people, and his work.

We gratefully acknowledge your love and caring and deeply appreciate everything you have done for Steve and us.

HOW TO REGISTER and VOTE

Floridians will go to the polls November 8 to choose new leaders and decide important constitutional issues. They will elect a governor and fill seats in the state Legislature, Congress, local offices and the state Cabinet. This information is presented to help you meet your responsibility to participate in these decisions.

Election dates are:

First Primary:	September 8
Second Primary:	October 4
General Election:	November 8.

The deadline for registering is August 8 for the primaries, October 11 for the general election. Registering takes a few minutes and requires only one form of identification. You can do this at the office of your county Supervisor of Elections. If it's been more than five years since you voted, your name probably has been purged from the voter rolls and you'll need to register again. It's also necessary to inform voting officials about a change of address, which may change your voting district.

If you are going to be out of your precinct on election day or can't get to the polls because of physical limitations or lack of transportation, you can request an absentee ballot, which must be returned before 7 p.m. on election day to be counted.

Primary elections determine the nominees of political parties for the decisive general election. You can only vote for candidates representing the party you are registered with. For example, if you are a Republican, your ballot will only show the names of the Republican candidates.

The second primary is held only if no candidate receives a majority of the votes in the first primary. Not all races will require a runoff. In the general election you can vote for anyone you choose regardless of party affiliation.

For more information on voting call your county Supervisor of Elections office or the Florida Division of Elections (904) 488-7690. To have a voice in important matters affecting your life, don't miss the opportunity to register and vote.

Glades area youths enjoy Girl Scouts School's Out Program

More than 60 Girl Scouts, ages 5-15, enjoyed a week packed with free fun and educational activities at the Girl Scout School's Out program at Belle Glade's Covenant Villas July 1-8. School's Out, administered by Palm Glades Girl Scout Council, a United Way Agency, is designed to teach girls valuable, life-learning skills and lessons, such as self-esteem, leadership skills, teamwork and a sense of community pride.

Girl Scout LeToya Thompson, 9, a third grade student at Glade View Elementary, concentrates during a challenging game of 'Simon Says' at the Girl Scouts School's Out Program.

LSMS registrations to be held Aug. 17

Student registration at Lake Shore Middle School will be held Aug. 17, 1994 in the media center from 8 a.m. until 1 p.m. All sixth grade students and new students entering Palm Beach County must obtain a physical examination for the 1994-95 school year. The examination must be performed within 12 months prior to the first day of school and must include a tuberculosis test. The physical examination should be reported on the State 3040 physical examination form. The student may enter school without the completed form, with evidence of a scheduled appointment, within the next 30 days. If the completed physical examination is not returned on the 31st day, the student will be excluded from school. School begins on Aug. 22.

Scruggs wins Sunshine State Games wrestling competition

For the third year in a row Lake Harbor-resident Donnie Scruggs won in the Sunshine State Games Greco-Roman and Freestyle wrestling competition.

The 16th annual Sunshine State Games, Florida's Olympic-style sport festival created for amateur athletes, was held last week in Tallahassee.

Wrestlers participated in a clinic on Friday, July 8, and matches on Saturday, July 9, in Florida State University's Tully gymnasium. Scruggs' wins in both Greco-Roman and Freestyle were the results of pins in every match, the quickest at 17 seconds. Wrestling in the Schoolboy 110 lb. weight division, the Glades Day School eighth grader ended the 1994 season with his sixth Sunshine State Games title and sixth Florida State Champion title.

Ruiz graduates from Otterbein College

Celestino Ruiz III, son of Mr. and Mrs. Celestino Ruiz Jr., of Belle Glade, was recently one of 450 graduating seniors at Otterbein College's recent commencement ceremonies.

Otterbein College, an independent, liberal arts institution affiliated with the United Methodist Church, is located in Westerville, Ohio.

Mr. Ruiz graduated Cum Laude with a Bachelor of Science degree in Business Administration.

The program's theme, "Girl Scouts Shine All the Time", embodies many of the messages being communicated through this program and other Girl Scout activities.

The School's Out program was originated by Palm Glades Girl Scout Council in an effort to realize the Girl Scout mission of reaching all girls — regardless of their racial, ethnic or socioeconomic background — to help them become caring, confident, resourceful citizens.

"It is our hope that we will be able to foster and nourish self-confidence and leadership skills among these young impressionable youth, so they become happy, resourceful citizens," Palm Glades Girl Scout Council Executive Director Sandra Patton said.

In addition to Covenant Villas, Palm Glades Girl Scout Council administers the School's Out program to six other under-served communities in Palm Beach County.

School's Out, funded for the third year by Children's Services Council of Palm Beach County, is completely free to the participants who receive a one-year Girl Scout membership, a meal and two snacks each day, program materials and a t-shirt.

Correction

An article in last week's edition of The Sun headlined "Belle Glade dentist accepted into state-of-the-art network" was incorrect. As it stated in the article, Dr. Fleihs is indeed an odontometrist. Our headline stated he was a dentist. We regret the error and any inconvenience this may have caused.

Alan Firpo qualifies for District 6 county commission seat

Alan Firpo became an official candidate for the Palm Beach County Commission in District 6 on July 25.

The main issues Mr. Firpo is interested in bringing to the voters are:

- 1) A commitment to turn the waterfront into a recreation area. Make Okeechobee an ideal location for year-round recreation he said.
- 2) A crime prevention platform that deals with symptoms rather than problems. He said he would reduce juvenile crime by keeping the kids off the streets. Mr. Firpo said the schools need to be open after hours. According to him, the school board should provide the facility, the sheriff will supply the security and the county will kick in some money and recreation staff.

- 3) He said he would also like to provide affordable child care for single-parents.
- 4) Mr. Firpo said the county needs to lure clean industry to the Glades area to supply much needed jobs.

Previously, Mr. Firpo worked for the schools in Belle Glade in a program called Project Respect. He said he understands the problems facing the Glades' residents.

Mr. Firpo and his wife, Marjorie, along with their three school-aged children, live in Loxahatchee. He is the coordinator of an alternative education program at Melaleuca Elementary School.

VA has funds for Homeless Providers Grant and Per Diem Program

The Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) is announcing that funds are now available for its Homeless Providers Grant and Per Diem Program, and the department is accepting applications from public and non-profit private groups for funds to develop programs that help veterans recover from homelessness.

Grants awarded under the program can provide up to 65 percent of the cost of acquiring or renovating facilities that will be used to furnish supportive services and housing or as service centers, or to purchase vans in support of these programs.

"This is an important step in VA's efforts to reach into our communities to provide the resources necessary to help our homeless veterans," said VA Secretary Jesse Brown. "One of our tasks at VA is to make those resources reach as far as possible, as soon as possible."

The Homeless Providers Grant and Per Diem Program was authorized in 1992. Some $5.5 million is available for the grant program this fiscal year. The Notice of Fund Availability for the program was published in the June 17 Federal Register. Applicants have 30 days from that date to apply for grant funding.

In addition to grants, those organizations that are eligible for grants may also apply for per diem payments, or in-kind assistance, from VA for veterans receiving services in programs that were established after Nov. 10, 1992.

VA is the only federal agency providing substantial hands-on assistance directly to homeless persons. In addition to the grant and per diem program, VA is directing more than $60 million to its specialized homeless assistance programs this year, including establishing new comprehensive homeless centers and other health care and rehabilitation programs for homeless veterans.

In an effort to notify as many interested groups as possible about the funding availability, VA will mail some 2,000 letters to veterans service organizations, other non-profit organizations, state and local governments, congressional offices and those who attended VA's National Summit on Homelessness among Veterans in February. Those interested in getting an application or obtaining more information about the program may call (202) 635-7313.
